While I contemplate my death from exposure to deadly microwave propagation, I have decided to enlighten my friends, family and community to what we are really facing. You see, since 2012 I was invited to be a member of an elite science forum based on a paper I wrote in 2011 on Bio- cosmology.

Henceforth I have had access to scientific information most people do not. And frankly the information is not what you want to hear, but nevertheless, you must. Our species as humans are under attack and I have understood how, why, who, where but not when.

The people who designed the later levels of the internet (of absolute course from back engineering alien technology) have insidious intentions as it has been proved that at 60G the human hemoglobin shuts down its' ability to assimilate oxygen, which will kill every living person, animal, fish, bird and even insects. We are running now between 6 and 9G depending on where you live. I am going to die from it soon so I do not care what the repercussions are from this post. I have an obligation to speak the truth as I know it.

I discovered in 2015 through scientific tests that there is a unique node found in regular tap water (seems naturally occurring) but when I exposed the tap water to high microwaves from a smart meter outside my home and it developed an unnatural microorganism.

(See at 40 seconds)

Right so then I had developed a coil that could potentially affect it so I applied a frequency into the water to brought through my CYCOIL® to attempt to affect it, which it did. Here is the result after ten days;

A multi- tentacled organism swimming around in the water(!)

The microorganism adapted to its environment at 15 days roughly;

At 21 days it morphed into a organism relating to its original DNA sequencing, in other words, the microorganism was fabricated using crustacean, squid and some other DNA-which is shown here. Here was the result after 21 days (it's incubation period); watch until the legs move which proved its a living creature.

Ok that being all said 10 years ago! Wish the scientific community would have listened to me then!!

Now we have an entirely different situation and one I would call a Priority One situation...because these effing creatures are now growing day by day and bigger, enhanced by the increasing wifi bandwidth, feeding off the life force of the water they are growing in and once they evolve into larger creatures, which will happen if unchecked, and they will then feed off all the living creatures in the water. And that is no guff, absolutely for certain ...I mean Jesus, we are looking at the end of our species in 30 years if their plan to increase the bandwidth to 60G continues!! It's a given that that will effing happen and I cannot sit back knowing the science without telling you guys that we HAVE TO CURTAIL that development!!!The entire Wi-Fi system is rigged to 60-62G. At 60G the human hemoglobin cannot assimilate oxygen! That is not just human, that is all wildlife, everywhere...Let that sink in.

Frankly, the fact that the people who designed the system knew that definitely and unequivocally defines an attack on our world. This must be answered.

We protest. We design a method of powering our devices and HAARP machines to send waves of information via non-microwave systems (Mother of God- solar, oceanic tides, wind, cymatic- anything other than the killing microwaves!!!)

Honestly, if we don't address this now, no ostrich blood is going to save us from that awful fate!

Take down the 10,000+ Starlink satellites which propagate the field in a spreading waveform! These are especially harmful to biologicals. I know most people do not have the information I have, but it's time to wake up! You are literally paying someone to kill you and all living creatures. Take action. I don't know how long I have left, but the truth will come forth from me while I still have breath. A'ho.
